The "Inspirations" series: a tribute to pop culture

Photography : Renoma House - All rights reserved

Focus on the paintings and jackets from the "Inspirations" series, through which Maurice Renoma pays tribute to the artists who frequented his Maison, a true factory where fashion and arts blurred their boundaries since its opening in 1963. Friends, clients, sources of inspiration: among them, Salvador Dali, Pablo Picasso, and Andy Warhol particularly shaped the life and history of the young creator Maurice Renoma at the beginning of his career.

The "Inspirations" jackets are still available at the Renoma shop.

The Renoma pop tartan coat

Image : Maison Renoma - All rights reserved

According to the old saying published in the 1970s Journal des Pieds Nickelés : "If you think you're not wrapped up warmly enough in this Renoma coat, then it's not a clothes seller you need, but a portable central heating fitter!"

This beautiful woolen and checkered coat with typical flashy colors of the pop era that Maurice Renoma has worn a lot is to be seen and seen again at the Appart during a pop trip in the heart of Maison Renoma.
